

The Post-graduate Program in Immunology, of the Institute of Biomedical Sciences, is pleased to invite all from our department to the seminar:

PD-1 in Innate Cells: Does it matter?

Cristina Bonorino

B.S. in Biological Sciences (1988), MS in Genetics and Molecular Biology (1991), and PhD in Immunology from UFRGS (1995). Postdoctoral fellowship at the National Jewish Center for Immunology (Colorado, USA), University of Minnesota and University of California San Diego (USA). Currently CB is full professor at UFCSPA, where her research aims to study the development of vaccines, tumor immunology, viral immunology, transplants and immunotherapy. She is also member of the Council of the International Society for Cell Stress, and she is assistant researcher in the Dept. of Surgery of the UC San Diego School of Medicine.

Venue: Anfiteatro Ivan da Mota e Albuquerque (ROSA), ICB IV
Av. Prof. Lineu Prestes, 1730 - Cidade Universitária.

Organizers

Theresa Ramalho
Gustavo P. Amarante-Mendes

Informations

Maria Eni do Sacramento Santos
3091-7277

March 18th
(Wednesday) 14:00pm

Support

